EAST END SENSATION

Tears as top soap star is killed off

■ ONE of soap's biggest stars is to be killed off in an amazing blockbuster Christmas storyline that will leave fans stunned. The funeral scenes, above, were filmed yesterday by EastEnders bosses who believe the shock plot will smash rivals Coronation Street and Emmerdale in the ratings.

FULL STORY: Pages 12 & 13

PRIDE AND JOY: Abigail, her husband Benoit and toddler Joseph with the very special latest addition to their family at the hospital yesterday

Picture: MARK EVENDEN/MEDIA SERVICE, ST GEORGE'S UNIVERSITY OF LONDON/PA

BRAVE mum Abigail Witchalls was totally "overjoyed" yesterday...to show off her new-born son.

She beamed with pride as she cradled her 5lb 6oz baby less than seven months after a brutal knife attack that almost killed her and left her partly paralysed.

And she boasted: "I managed a natural delivery with very little assistance. 'With help, I have even been able to breastfeed."

"We are overjoyed and so grateful to all the medical teams who have helped us." Abigail, 26, was being visited at St George's Hospital, in Tooting, south London, by her husband Benoit, 27, and Joseph, 2.

Race

Benoit said: "We are really looking forward to an exciting homecoming with another beautiful son."

"Joseph is over the moon with his new brother. The first time he set eyes on him he exclaimed, 'Baby come out!'"

Abigail had not been due to give birth until Christmas Day but her family raced her to hospital on Friday after she went into labour.

She was in early pregnancy when she was brutally stabbed as she walked down a country lane in her home village of Little Bookham, Surrey, with Joseph in his buggy.

Her attacker held a knife to Joseph's throat before plunging the blade into Abigail's neck with such force that her spinal cord was almost severed. Neighbours who heard her screams rushed her to hospital.

She was so badly injured that a priest read her the last rites.

But, despite doctors' fears that she and her unborn baby would not survive, Abigail stunned them all with her recovery.

This month she was finally released from hospital and allowed to move back to her family home - which has been adapted to improve her quality of life.

A neighbour of the couple said: "We are all delighted that the baby has been delivered safely."

"After what Abigail and her entire family has been through, it is a true miracle and shows that sometimes prayers can be answered."

No one has been charged with the chilling and seemingly motiveless attack on April 20.

● A trust fund has been set up for the family and donations can be made to:

The Abigail Witchalls Trust, PO Box 54047, London SW20 8ZH.

GUN PLEA ARREST

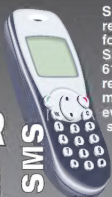

POLICE hunting an alleged gunman over a series of shootings seized a man last night.

Neil Wood, 27, was held on suspicion of attempted murder, aggravated burglary and robbery.

Detectives released an emotional plea on tape from his partner begging him to give himself up to police earlier in the day.

Hours later the father-of-two, from Wigan, Lancs, was arrested in Derbyshire.

The incident, at a busy junction in Tottenham, north London, has been referred to the Independent Police Complaints Commission.

The injured man was last night in a stable condition in hospital. A woman police officer was also treated for whiplash, cuts and bruises.

Boys are banned but show bosses will allow celebs including Calum Best and Fran Cosgrave into the secret London house for dinner parties and poker nights.

"No blokes are allowed in the house uninvited," says Kayleigh, 20. "It's to keep us out of trouble."

Natalie, 19, is sharing a room with Vanessa, 27. And she admits: "It's a bit weird but I am trying to forget that the cameras are there."

Vanessa adds: "It's not like Big Brother because we come and go as we please. It's like having lots of sisters. We are girls who are giving each other a lot of love."

JUNGLE FEVER: Cannon & Ball stir it up

Ruck on TommyEXCLUSIVE
by PETER DYKE

ITV ARE planning to cause a rumble in the jungle by entering Cannon and Ball as ONE contestant on the show.

The idea is to give the pairing just a single entry, meaning viewers will be voting for them both to win, or both to take part in a Bushtucker Trial.

However, the news is already causing unrest between the two jokers – real names Thomas Derbyshire, 67, and Robert Harper, 61 – and it's set to get worse once they're dropped in the Oz jungle.

A show source said: "They have been a duo since 1978 but they are still individuals and want to be treated equally."

"They fear that if one of them says or does something wrong they will both get punished and end up doing lots of trials or leaving the show early."

"If that happens all hell could break loose. It's a great idea by the ITV bosses because it is bound to cause friction and problems in the camp."

Unfair

"Even if Cannon and Ball are getting on OK, some of the other contestants may feel pairing them gives the duo an unfair advantage to win the series."

"The funny men certainly aren't very happy about it but the jungle opportunity is too good a chance to turn down."

The comedy couple first hit the big time on Bruce Forsyth's Big Night telly talent show in 1978.

Then the Cannon and Ball Show was launched in the early '80s and ran for 12 years – coining their now-famous catchphrase "Rock on Tommy".

However, in recent years they have stayed out of the spotlight and are now born-again Christians with strong views on religion.

Cannon and Ball will be the second pair to go into the jungle, following in the footsteps of last year's married couple Vic Reeves, 46, and Nancy Sorrell, 30.

SNAKES ALIVE: Expert Chris Peberdy holding a King Brown like the one found in the jungle. The snake round his neck is a carpet python

I'M A Celebrity... bosses have found a deadly snake in the jungle camp which chases its victims before the kill.

In the past few days they've captured a King Brown – one of the deadliest beasts lurking in the Australian bush.

It can grow up to three metres long, is highly poisonous, chases its prey and has a massive appetite.

Experts reckon one could even manage to polish off a pint-sized celebrity such as Bobby Ball.

The news of the shock discovery has filtered back to the UK just as the show's stars are getting ready to jet out for the ITV1 show – which starts next Sunday.

Nasty

And it has terrified some of the smaller celebs like comic Bobby, who fear they could end up as a late-night snake snack.

The King Brown was discovered by the show's "Dr Evil" Chris Lore who dreams up all the nasty Bushtucker Trials.

He's been working in the camp in Murwillumbah, New South Wales, for the past two months getting ready for the new series.

And he admits he was shocked to find the snake in the area.

He said last night: "I think this year one of our celebrities will definitely have an encounter with one of these snakes and it may not be a happy one.

and MARK JEFFERIES

"They are everywhere. I have lost count of how many we keep clearing every day."

"Normally snakes just back away and scurry off if they come into contact with humans but this one actually chases his victims."

"That's scary. He can grow quite big and has a large appetite."

"So the celebrities had better watch out!"

"We have been coming across new types of highly venomous snakes in the past week that we have never seen in this area before."

Show medic Bob McCarron said his team would have to be on guard 24 hours a day to provide emergency treatment if anyone is attacked or bitten.

He said: "We have seen more venomous species this time around than ever before."

Bushtucker boffin Chris also said the problem of leeches and ticks is also worse than on previous shows.

Spiders

He revealed: "I have never known it so bad."

"And of course, let's not forget the funnel web spiders we keep seeing in there."

"I hope these celebrities don't believe those tales that the jungle is fake and that they will enjoy a holiday out here."

"It's no holiday camp and this is a gruelling place to be in."

"I spent 24 hours in the camp site last week and believe me that was enough." Bosses are expected to throw ten contestants into the jungle – then add an extra surprise member for the camp midway through the show.

There will also be several celebs on standby in case anyone quits because of the conditions.

The celebs believed to be packing their bags for the trip down under are singer Jimmy Osmond, 42, wine expert Jilly Gooldeen, 48, antiques dealer David Dickinson, 64, former EastEnders Sid Owen, 33, Atomic Kitten Jenny Frost, 27, ex-EastEnders Elaine Loran, 36, comics Tommy Cannon and Bobby Ball, 67, and 61, journalist Carol Thatcher, 52, DJ Sara Cox, 30, and Corrie's Sean Wilson, 40.

SEVERE FROST: Jenny has been told she will have to take fewer pairs of panties into the jungle – but it won't stop her going after the lolly for becoming jungle queen

Bush trials are a doddle

FORMER EastEnders Elaine Lordan reckons stomach-churning Bushtucker challenges will be easy after her year of hell.

The troubled actress, who played Lynne Slater in the BBC1 soap, is looking forward to flying to Oz in a bid to re-launch her TV career.

And it's a personal triumph after a year in which her mum Bernie died in a suspected suicide and her baby James was born with a life-threatening muscle defect.

Speaking exclusively to the Daily Star Sunday Elaine, 37, said: "I am just looking after my baby most of the time."

"It has been a horrible year for me."

But her son's condition has improved, she's landed her comeback chance in the jungle – and found love.

She said: "I am so much in love with my fella Peter and thankfully my baby has got better. I am very happy, everything is going well now."

Knicker ban on 'sinning' Jenny

BOSSES have got their knickers in a twist over the sexy undies Jenny Frost wants to wear in the jungle. The ex-Atomic Kitten babe has been given 16 pairs of designer panties by Welsh fashion king Julien MacDonald. She was sent the briefs – one pair for every day she could be in the jungle – after heading a successful campaign promoting them a few months ago.

But telly chiefs have banned Jenny, 27, from taking so many pairs of knickers into the jungle, saying it is against the rules. The celebs are allowed only a limited amount of clothing, which they must wash in the rain forest. And Jenny has now been told she's allowed just seven pairs of undies – and must leave the rest behind.

A source said: "Jenny was thrilled when this large package arrived at her home with all this fantastic designer lingerie from Julien MacDonald. But when she rang the producers they told her she had to ditch most of it. The rules state the stars are allowed a certain number of items. And 16 pairs of knickers was way too much."

Meanwhile, Jenny has revealed there is someone "very special" she'll be sad to leave behind while she's on the show. And it's not her boyfriend, DJ Dom Thrupp. She will have to be parted from her three-month-old sausage dog called George Michael.

A pal said: "She's heartbroken at having to leave him behind. But all her friends will be taking good care of him while she is away."

"They've even offered to sit with George and watch the show so he can see his owner on the TV and know she's OK."

ONE DANCE FROM DEATH

Dive injury puts Chico's life on line

X FACTOR hunk Chico Slimani is just one wrong dance move from DEATH.

The star risks a crippling injury – or worse – every time he gets on the stage to perform after suffering a freak diving accident that almost killed him.

The former stripper was in South Africa on a trip to see a girlfriend when he jumped into the sea from a cliff top.

Doctors told Chico it was a "miracle" he wasn't paralysed or even killed by the impact.

And they warned he could cause a recurrence of the injury whenever he steps on stage to perform.

Pelvis

Speaking exclusively to his favourite paper, Chico, 34, said: "My accident happened last January while I was out in Cape Town visiting an ex-girlfriend.

"We were out for the day and I dived off a 60 foot cliff into the sea and landed completely wrong. The jump pushed my pelvis up into my spine and I fractured a vertebrae which affects the whole nervous system.

"I was rushed to hospital and slowly recovered but I was told by the doctor that it was a complete miracle that I wasn't paralysed from the waist down. That is when God found me and I found my spirituality.

"Before then I was lost in the wilderness but my life is so different now as I have changed all my perceptions. I have found the path of Sufism which is the mystical side of Islam."

Moroccan Chico, who has slept with more than 1,000 lovers and looks to be trying to add one more notch to his bedpost in our exclusive pictures, opposite, admitted the accident physical – but now it's the musical fused with the spiritual.

"Religion is now my way of life. I meditate and pray five times a day. My ultimate goal is not winning awards but changing lives."

Last night he didn't have to worry too much about his dance moves.

Chico was trying to wow the crowd with a ballad instead of his usual high-energy performances – choosing Enrique Iglesias' hit Hero.

But even if he gets the boot, he has recorded a single called Chico Time which he will release and try to get to No.1.

A show source said Chico will never let his serious injury get in the way of his performance, despite the risk.

Bizarre

She added: "He is determined to make the most of his life and have a good time."

Meanwhile, Chico looked to be in the mood for love when we snapped him on the street in a break from rehearsals.

And some fans were still keen to get up close and personal – despite our revelations last week about his love of bizarre sex.

Welsh babe Lisa Evans, 27, revealed that the man who once herded goats in Morocco talked her into making love "goaty style".

But how does he chat up girls in the first place? We mocked up this Just Jane casebook, right, to put Chico's technique to the test ...

It's a miracle that I wasn't paralysed changed his whole attitude to life. He now prays several times every day and also spends time meditating.

And his religion means he will not mind if he fails to win X Factor.

He added: "Everything that I used to look on as important is no longer so vital to me as God is now the centre of my world."

"I have never been a materialistic kind of person but I am even less so now. My life before was all about the

Simon's cash factor

■ GREEDY Simon Cowell says he doesn't care who wins The X Factor – as long as they make him loads of money.

The acid-tongued judge is supposed to be right behind his acts Journey South and The Conway Sisters in the group section.

■ But Cowell, already worth at least £50million, said: "The only records I regret making are records which don't sell. I couldn't care less what's on a record. If it sells a million, what do I care?"

■ He has already admitted that G4 should have won last year's show because they have sold more records than the winner Steve Brookstein.

And he is desperate for whoever eventually wins the recording contract this year to become a long-term star.

■ Cowell, 46, has spent hardly any time with his acts this year. He flew into Britain 48 hours before the start of the finals and spent just a few hours with them.

In the second week it emerged he didn't even know the names of the members of his groups.

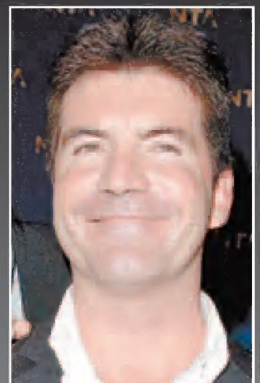

■ But a source said: "It doesn't really matter because even if one of his acts doesn't win he'll be in the money. They will sign to his company BMG anyway."

Cowell said he was thrilled by the success of the show, made by his own company Syco.

■ He said: "It's what I call a delicious thrill. I knew most people were desperate for me to fail and sometimes that's the incentive you need to give it a go."

"On the show, you sing the wrong song and no matter how popular you are, you're off. So it's all about the songs."

■ He added: "This is just a fun period in my life and I hope I can look back and say, 'I made the most of it, had a good time and didn't take it too seriously.'"

■ SEXY Sinead Conway is sneaking away from singing sessions with her sisters – for secret dates with a mystery millionaire.

The 23-year-old, a member of the Conway Sisters, met the man at one of the Saturday night live shows in Wembley, north London. And now they are meeting regularly for steamy dates.

A show source said: "The girls are supposed to be focused on their music. But Sinead has got other things on her mind. She always seems to find an excuse to leave rehearsals at lunchtime or for dinner."

"Little is known about him except he's a well-dressed businessman who is a millionaire and she has told her sisters he treats her like a princess."

FRESH START: Steve

Winner Steve is free at last

by SUSAN HILL

X FACTOR series one winner Steve Brookstein is celebrating after finally being released from his record deal.

And the soulful singer - who has so far failed to get a mention on the second series of the show - couldn't be happier.

In an exclusive interview with the Daily Star Sunday Steve said: "X Factor was brilliant. It changed my life. It was cheesy but it was also fun.

"But once you win you go from being on a prime-time TV show to suddenly becoming an artist.

Toys

"It's a bit like a well-known pantomime actor being thrust into a Shakespeare play - nobody takes you seriously.

"They wanted me to do another album of covers and that's when I really started throwing my toys out of the pram.

"I was desperate to do a tour but they wouldn't let me because they wouldn't have made any money.

"I'm planning on doing another album - but it will be in my own time and in my own style."

The south Londoner added: "The music business is really tough. I just hope this year's winner realises that."

Strictly sweaty

CHEF James Martin fears that looking like a "sweaty, gay northern Elvis" could stop him winning Strictly Come Dancing.

The 6ft 3in star of Ready Steady Cook has shed two stones since taking to the floor for the BBC1 series but still hates squeezing into the skintight suits.

Martin, 33, who is partnered by stunning professional Camilla Dallerup, 31, said: "Having bent over sinks all my life, I've suffered terrible back trouble during the show and squeezing into those outfits hasn't helped.

"I'm aware I generally end up looking like a sweaty, gay northern Elvis. One costume was Roger Black's from last year and it was so tight I looked more like a bag of haggis."

BILLIE'S STAYING AS EX CHRIS RETURNS TO TELLY

Leaving Doctor Who? Don't make me laugh

BILLIE Piper has slammed reports she is quitting her role as Doctor Who's sidekick.

Yesterday it was claimed the 23-year-old had asked writer Russell T Davies not to include her in plans for a third series of BBC1's hit sci-fi show.

But speaking exclusively to the Daily Star Sunday, the former pop singer said she was furious over the false claims. "It's ludicrous, I'd never let Russell down after what he's done for me," she said.

EXCLUSIVE ■ by AMY WATTS

And according to a pal of the star, Billie couldn't quit the popular show even if she wanted to - because she has already signed a contract to film the third series.

"She finds the story hilarious because she is actually tied into a contract for the third series," said a friend.

"So there is no way she could quit the show now. Not that she has any desire to do so."

Billie was named best actress at last month's National TV Awards for her role as the Time Lord's sidekick Rose Tyler.

A newspaper report yesterday claimed she was worried about being typecast.

But the pal says Billie, who last week appeared in a BBC adaptation of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, thinks the role will actually help her get more work.

"She thinks the BBC deal is one of the best things to have happened to her," her pal said.

Success

"The funny thing is it's part of her contract that the BBC give her other roles precisely so she won't get typecast."

"She couldn't be happier at the moment and has no plans to turn her back on the role that has brought her such success."

Billie, who is estranged from hubby Chris Evans, will make her first appearance alongside the new Doctor, David Tennant, in an hour-long special which will be screened on Christmas Day.

Tennant replaced Christopher Eccleston as the Doctor after he quit the role before the first series had finished being shown.

The second series will be screened in the spring.

CAR CRASH TV

DOCTORS fear viewers will put their lives at risk to win a classic car on Chris Evans' new ITV show.

Evans, 39, right, will burst back on to telly screens next week with OFI - a revamped Sunday night version of his hit TFI Friday. But a game called Laid Up is creating a storm because you have to be hurt to win.

Three contestants, recently out of hospital, go head-to-head for the car. The winner is judged on how they got hurt.

A spokesman described it as: "The only TV show in the world worth getting injured for."

But a top doctor at a London hospital warned: "This game has serious consequences. We don't want viewers doing anything deliberately in order to get hurt."

TRAITOR

Kerry blasts tell-all nanny

EXCLUSIVE by JONATHAN CORKE

DEVASTATED Kerry Katona last night branded her nanny a "traitor" after she touted intimate secrets about her to pay off alleged gambling debts.

Lifelong family friend Debbie Price, 41, always promised Kerry she would never betray her.

But a megabucks offer has prompted cash-strapped Debbie to reveal all about her two years working for the ex-Atomic Kitten.

Troubled Kerry, 25, who spent time in rehab earlier this year where she was treated for depression, is said to be "totally gutted" by the betrayal. The I'm A Celebrity star, who is back with childhood love Dave Cunningham, told a close friend: "I trusted Debbie as if she was family."

"Now she's gone and betrayed me. She's a traitor."

Pals of Debbie - who was said to dote on Kerry's daughters Molly, four, and Lilly Sue, two, by ex-Westlife star Brian McFadden - say she decided to tell all after a row over working hours.

But the Daily Star Sunday can reveal her finances had reached crisis point and she was desperate to earn some extra money.

Habit

A family source said: "She's in a bit of financial mess."

The insider claims twice-married Debbie, seen in our exclusive picture leaving a bingo hall with Kerry, frittered hundreds if not thousands of pounds on gambling.

And she was said to be "always overdrawn" after buying "rubbish" on cable channels.

The mum-of-three used to live around the corner from Kerry's gran Betty.

Last night the 75-year-old said: "It's awful to think she can do that to Kerry."

"They're traitors these people."

Last night Debbie was unavailable for comment.

At the £150,000 family home in Warrington she shares with joiner husband Stephen, her daughter Kerry Wright said she had gone away for a few days.

THE LAST WRITES: The shock script sees Peggy Mitchell throw soil into the grave as Albert Square says farewell to the mystery favourite

So, who's Pegged it?

THE EastEnders funeral has sparked a massive "who's in the box?" mystery. And here at the Daily Star Sunday we've put together a list of the most likely candidates to meet the Grim Reaper in Albert Square this Christmas...

Kat Moon

(Jessie Wallace) Kat was up to her neck in Chrissie-gate. Having given Chrissie an alibi, Sam Mitchell has a few choice words for the brunette. But could the blonde commit murder after all?

Dennis Rickman

(Nigel Harman) Dennis plans a new life abroad with wife Sharon but the pair decide to celebrate Christmas in Walford. But having backed the Mitchells against gangster Johnny Allen, could Dennis be a target?

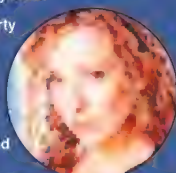

Sam Mitchell

(Kim Medcalf) Poor Sam's prison ordeal has left her an emotional wreck. And having helped Chrissie cover up Den's murder she's not in the clear with the law. But in a cruel twist could she die trying to leave Walford for good?

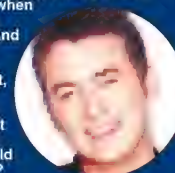

Chrissie Watts

(Tracy-Ann Oberman) Chrissie has finally been arrested for murdering Dirty Den and has been caught on tape confessing to the crime. A life behind bars looks likely. Or could she commit suicide?

Alfie Moon

(Shane Richie) Alfie is heart-broken when his beloved Nana dies. And having lost the love of his life in Kat, the former Queen Vic landlord is at an all-time low. But could he end it all?

Top star killed at Christmas

TEAR JERKER: Pauline Fowler

ONE of the soap world's biggest stars will be killed off at Christmas leaving millions of fans sobbing over their turkey.

The shock storyline in EastEnders is expected to smash rivals Coronation Street and Emmerdale in the battle for viewers over the festive period.

Last night an EastEnders source at BBC1 said: "The exit will be the last thing viewers will expect."

Five key characters are set to depart the show named Best Serial Drama at the recent National TV Awards.

Twist

Feisty Kat Moon, her husband Alfie, Dennis Rickman, Sam Mitchell and Chrissie Watts are all leaving Walford.

It was thought the TV door would be left open for all five - played by Jessie Wallace, 34, Shane Richie, 41, Nigel Harman, 32, Kim Medcalf, 31, and Tracy-Ann Oberman, 36.

But in an amazing twist we can reveal that one of the unfortunate five will leave Albert Square in a coffin -

EXCLUSIVE
— by SUSAN HILL —

though the identity of the character is being kept as one of soapland's top secrets.

But insiders say fans will be "heartbroken" when they discover who it is.

The bombshell news came last night after the filming of the mystery victim's burial at a cemetery north of London.

Bosses penned the shock death plot to boost ratings and judging by these emotional scenes they could be on to a winner.

Peggy Mitchell (Barbara Windsor), Sharon Rickman, (Letitia Dean) and trouble-some teenager Stacey Slater, (Lacey Turner) are grief stricken as they say farewell at the graveside.

Dot Branning (June Brown) Phil Mitchell (Steve McFadden) Pauline Fowler, (Wendy Richard) and Ian Beale (Adam Woodyatt) also braved the cold to film the emotional farewell at North Walford Cemetery, Herts.

Our source told the Daily Star Sunday: "Viewers won't see this coming. It is tragic and sudden so there are bound to be lots of tears.

"The character is one of the five who are leaving and their death will be even bigger than any before it.

"But viewers will have to wait as they're not going to let this get leaked.

"The opportunity was there to produce a shocking exit for one of the cast and that's exactly what they've done. The actor agreed that the exit was suitably explosive.

Tissues

"It really is fantastic stuff. Although it's the end of one character's life it is the start of a massive storyline as locals try to come to terms with it."

Christmas at Albert Square notoriously keeps fans on the edge of their seats and reaching for the tissues.

On Christmas Day 2002 the show attracted more than 16million viewers when heart-throb Jamie Mitchell, played by Jack Ryder, died in hospital after being mowed down by Martin Fowler.

And on New Year's Eve, 1998, 15million viewers saw sexy babe Tiffany Mitchell (Martine McCutcheon) run over outside the Queen Vic.

GROANS: Hunkey Jody

Love's a pain for Lip

HUNK Jody Latham got more than he bargained for when he dropped his pants for a graphic sex scene in the outrageous TV comedy Shameless.

His simulated moans of ecstasy turned to groans when he was straddled by Christine Bottomley for a romp against a wheely bin.

Originally, heart-throb Jody, 22, who plays Lip wore a flesh-coloured thong for his on-screen sex scenes.

But that was so revealing in moments of passion that Channel 4 bosses insisted he wear a flesh-coloured sock to tone down his willy.

Wined

And while that appeased the censor, it caused Jody a real pain in his most private parts.

"It was really awful," he confesses. "When I took it off I really winced. It felt as though my privates had been waxed."

"The trouble was that they secured the sock with heavy-duty sticking tape on both sides."

"That really took all the glamour away!"

"But having sex on screen still takes an awful lot of beating," adds Jody.

A new series of the cult drama returns in January.

Jail drag barons

CONVICTS are to escape the Government's smoking ban - in case it sparks prison riots.

The Department of Health says it's too dangerous to enforce the legislation on jail inmates and psychiatric patients.

They believe they could go on the rampage without their regular nicotine fix.

The move was also made on the basis that smoking is found to have a "calming" effect on convicts.

Even a spokesman for the Action on Smoking and Health (ASH) said: "This exemption is justified."

The rest of the UK is expected to be barred from lighting up in public places, including food-serving pubs, by the summer of 2007.

RUMPY GRUMPY

TWO out of three guys don't want sex on a first date and would turn down a one-night stand, says a Glamour magazine poll.

LOVE PACT: Terry with his fiancée Toni Poole - she has previously forgiven him for cheating. But new claims will have hurt her

Picture: XPOSURE

LUST: Shalimar Wimble had sex on Terry's back seat

John Terry took me up Junction 9 on a sex drive

CHAMPIONS League love machine John Terry has made more than one emergency stop for sex in his swanky £115,000 car.

The Chelsea ace was revealed last week to have cheated on fiancée Toni Poole with a 17-year-old blonde in his black Bentley. But another conquest of the tough-tackling England star has told the Daily Star Sunday how they had a back seat bunk-up.

And it took place near Junction 9 of the M25 close to Chelsea's training ground at Cobham, Surrey - after he pulled up on the motorway's hard shoulder.

Traffic

Shalimar Wimble, 25, who had a two-month fling with £75,000-a-week Terry, said: "He could not wait. 'I remember it was near Junction 9. The motorway was packed with cars."

"But we had sex on the back seat just feet away from the passing traffic. He loved it."

Shalimar told pals that Terry, 25 - who played for England against Argentina yesterday - used his

EXCLUSIVE
by ANDY LEA

Bentley Continental as a "love wagon". One said: "Shalimar got to know John's car very well. It's something you expect of teenagers rather than a multi-millionaire footballer."

"Then again, maybe he just really loves his car."

"John's passions are obviously cars and girls - and preferably at the same time."

Blonde Shalimar met Terry

We did it on the back seat...

at London's celebrity haunt Chinawhite in March. He was enjoying a drink with teammates Frank Lampard, Glen Johnson and Wayne Bridge.

When Terry left the club, he told her to follow him in a car waiting behind his.

When they stopped at traffic lights, the rear door of Terry's car opened and he beckoned her to get in.

She claims that when she joined him on the back seat, he had already undone his trousers Shalimar said: "We were naughty and he asked me to perform a sex act on him."

Last week, Chelsea fan Jenny Barker revealed she also performed a sex act on Terry on the back seat of his Bentley.

She had met him just hours earlier and Terry had texted her asking her to meet him in a car park in Esher, Surrey, for "a little kiss".

When she climbed into his car, Terry put a Luther Vandross track on his state-of-the-art car stereo.

Then he put the teenager's hand on his crotch.

"One thing led to another but we did not have sex," said Jenny.

Thong

"I didn't want to give in to him like I can imagine every girl does."

Terry, who told Jenny he loved her skimpily thong, then sent explicit text messages begging for X-rated photos of her.

He even suggested a threesome with Jenny's brunette friend.

He wrote: "I want to * both of you. I'm gonna give you both the best  ever."

Terry has been with his fiancée Toni, 24, for seven years.

In that time he has cheated on the beautiful eight times - but he has always been forgiven.

In September he said: "I regret what I've done to Toni."

"I won't cheat on her again and want to marry her more than anything else in the world."

MY PANTIE-DOTE

JOHN Terry's fiancée wants to make sure he doesn't stray again - by allegedly making him wear a tracking device in his underpants.

Toni Poole was told about Forget-Me-Not panties, which are fitted with sensors that monitor temperature and trace movement.

Unfortunately, the company makes the tell-tale briefs only for women as yet.

But Toni is thought to have asked the Chelsea skipper whether he would be willing to wear such an item.

A friend of Toni's said: "Toni wants to give Terry another chance but it's starting to get ridiculous."

"If Terry's only excuse is that he can't help himself then she expects him to agree to wear a device that will deter him."

The pal added: "Toni was told the idea as a joke but she has put the idea to Terry. We're not sure how he took it."

Moss 'abused' at restaurant

KATE MOSS seemed to be subjected to a bit of abuse from Lara Flynn Boyle's table after the supermodel was given priority over the actress in a top restaurant.

Mossy, 31, arrived at New York eatery Nobu with a couple of girl pals on Thursday and was rushed to a VIP table by staff, mindful of the attention that her recent cocaine scandal could stir up.

But in their rush to look after the Croydon-born beauty, 35-year-old

EXCLUSIVE

Lara, former star of hit US legal drama The Practice, and her friends were overlooked for the next priority table.

And Flynn Boyle, who also starred in cult David Lynch drama Twin Peaks in the '90s was apparently not impressed by being made to wait...

Our onlooker told us: "Lara was fuming. It was obvious staff were keen to Kate away from prying eyes as Manhattan has been abuzz since the cocaine scandal broke. It's increased her celebrity if anything and they didn't want her to get harassed.

"Lara didn't have to wait for long, but it was obviously long enough. She was eventually seated near to Kate and it all got a bit strange.

"A friend of Lara's flung some tempura which landed on Kate's table. An accident apparently – they were in larey spirits and someone allegedly shouted 'slut' at a high pitch.

Jealous

"When staff were called over the party all insisted that the shouting and food fights were merely part of high-jinks among themselves. "But they all left before ordering main courses. Kate just tried to ignore the whole business."

And we doubt that Lara's distress was a result of Kate's celebrity – and the table mishap. After all, can it be a coincidence that Kate stepped out with Lara's ex-boyfriend, or rather old man-pal, Jack Nicholson, 68, earlier in the week?

The Iowa-born actress is rumoured to have been a bit jealous of Kate's friendship with The Shining star and is said to still hold a torch for the old cad.

If so, way to go there Lara, keep your cards close to your chest. He'll never know you care after that...

WHICH television presenter had green room flunkies in a tizzy by showing up to record a programme half-cut and in a state of undress? Apparently coffee and a cold shower were the order of the day...

Hey Jude, your Sienna's sexy

IT'S months since he cracked a smile but Jude Law was beaming as he visited Sienna Miller on a Malibu photo shoot.

The 32-year-old grinned as the newly bobbed Miller, 23, donned a wig for the sexy shoot. And it's probably got a lot to do with the pair being shackled up at LA's Shatters Beach resort for two days.

But things were less loved-up when Jude's ex Sadie Frost, 40, bumped into the nanny who broke the Law at her local supermarket.

She almost collided with 26-year-old Daisy Wright at Waitrose on London's Finchley Road. The pair merely exchanged a frosty silence.

CHARLOTTE'S LURCH

CHARLOTTE CHURCH, we salute you.

We were worried the 19-year-old party girl had gone soft when nag-bag rugby boyfriend Gavin Henson dragged her out of the GQ Awards in September. But she didn't let the 23-year-old put a damper on Friday night as she stepped up to the karaoke at Islington's Guilty Pleasures night. The singer, who looked fab at the start of the night, crooned Love Is In The Air at the Carling Academy.

But love walked out in a strop at 1.30am when Gav left our Welsh diva to it. She stumbled out after 2am looking emotional – and it seemed her eyes were still recovering the next day...

It's high time daddy's girls figured it out...

FAT'S ALRIGHT MAMA: Lisa Marie Presley is the image of her dad – in more ways than one NICOLE RICHIE and Lisa Marie Presley have many things in common. They both have famous singing dads – 24-year-old Nic's is Lionel and Lisa Marie's pop needs no introduction. But the pair also both seem to suffer from constant battles with their weight.

Lisa, 37, looked as though she's inherited Elvis's penchant for deep-fried banana sandwiches when she performed at California's House of Blues.

And Nicole, who was taunted by her then slimmer friend Paris Hilton, 24, when they starred in The Simple Life, is now a shadow of her former self.

Ever heard of a happy medium, folks? And we don't mean a portion of fries.

THIN END OF THE WEDGE: Nicole is looking underweight

QUICKIE..

SEEMS singer Martha Wainwright is softening towards her dad Louison.

Martha, 29, who wrote the song Bloody Mother F Asshole about the 59-year-old legend said recently that she owed him "a lot of love, some money and more of my time".

QUICKIE..

TERI HATCHER admits she'd love to play Lois Lane in The New Adventures of Superman again if a reunion special goes ahead.

The 40-year-old Desperate Housewives star said: "I like the idea of revisiting Lois and Clark, seeing how things turned out. 'I'd be up for that.'"

QUICKIE..

ITV1 bosses are thought to be desperate to persuade Liz Hurley, 40, to front a bi-weekly talent search for society girls.

The show will take young ladies from all walks of life and try to transform them ahead of a Debutante Ball. But apparently Liz thinks the idea is a trifle tacky.

FORGET the white tradition, Christmas was pink and orange in Sheffield when Jordan and Peter Andre switched on the lights in the Meadowhall Centre. Gorgeous Jords, 27 sported a glittering baby blush head-band that harked back to her wedding dress. And as the centre came to a gridlock, Pete, 32, whose creosote tan matched that of his lady, told us what he was buying the missus for Christmas. "The best Of Michael Bolton because that's what we make love to," he said. Why aren't we surprised?

She's a Brit tired

RUMOURS continue about the demise of Britney's marriage to Kevin Federline – and 27-year-old Kev has spent so much time away that the singer might as well be a single mum. Brittney, 23, seen here looking tired on a shopping trip in Malibu, has been busy looking after month-old son Sean. Ex-boyfriend Justin Timberlake, 24, has been more help, making a TV appeal for the return of Sean's stolen baby snaps. Sort it out Kev.

Iraq heroes honoured with parade of poppies

■ AMBUSH VICTIMS: Red Caps killed in Iraq three years ago are honoured with crosses in the Field of Remembrance at Westminster Abbey

ON DUTY: David in uniform

March of courage for David

■ by ANDY LEA

DAVID Hart marched to the Cenotaph with two former comrades yesterday. He is a wounded "veteran"...at the age of just 29.

David, of Tiverton, Devon, was a Territorial Army lance corporal on patrol in Afghanistan last year when a suicide bomber drove a taxi laden with explosives up to his Land-Rover.

The blast blew him into a nearby field. He was badly burned, suffered horrific head injuries and a collapsed lung and almost lost an arm.

He went into a coma and woke up in a German hospital two weeks later, his parents and fiancée at his bedside.

Scars

Now, thanks to the British Legion, he's back on his feet and studying for a new career.

But he'll always carry scars...and still can't remember the bombing.

David said: "It seems odd that I'm classed as a veteran at 29. 'The main effort of Remembrance Sunday has always been to look after veterans from the first two world wars. But they have been conflicts ever since.

"For me, Remembrance Sunday is a time to think about my comrades.

"I lost a very good friend in the attack and this year's commemorations have really brought it home."

WE WON'T FORGET

■ by EMMA BAMFORD

■ AS thousands prepare to honour Britain's war dead today, there was a stark reminder yesterday of the many servicemen and women still risking their lives for their country.

In the Field of Remembrance outside Westminster Abbey, friends and family had pushed wooden crosses into the ground to commemorate lost loved ones.

■ In the Royal Military Police section six crosses stood in a row. They were marked with the names of the six Red Caps killed in the ambush of a police station in Iraq in 2003 – Sgt Simon Hamilton-Jewell, Cpl Russell Aston, Cpl Simon Miller, Cpl Paul Long, LCpl Tom Keys and LCpl Ben Hyde.

Cenotaph in London when the association's chaplain led hundreds of widows and ex-servicemen in hymns and prayers.

■ As the Waltham Forest Pipe band led the march away, Ellen March Chapman laid a wreath of poppies at the base of the monument in memory of her husband Roy who died in 1984.

He was an RAF chief technician who died as a result of the radiation he was exposed to on Easter Island from 1958 to 1960 during atom bomb testing.

■ Mrs March Chapman, 65, travelled down from Skegness, Lincs, to lay the wreath on behalf of the War Widows and the British Nuclear Test Veterans Association.

She said: "I laid this for the widows of all the men who have died from the radiation – and they are still dying."

■ The Queen will lead the annual Remembrance Sunday tributes at the Cenotaph today while people will also pay their respects throughout the country.

BIG SPENDER: Caudwell

John's paid a 4 tune

PHONES4U supremo John Caudwell has bid £50,000 for the chance to perform a duet with Bryan Adams.

He forked out as part of the Children In Need Great Big Bid gala auction, which has so far raised almost £500,000 for the appeal.

Billionaire John will get to sing Bryan's chart-topping duet When You're Gone with the star at one of his 2006 UK gigs.

Caudwell, 53, joined the bidding frenzy after it was last week revealed that he plans to sell his phone empire for £1billion.

Trip

He has also boosted the appeal by selling a week-long trip for nine people on his yacht in Antibes, southern France.

It went for £35,000 and was won by rich-list businessman Nick Robinson.

David Beckham and Jodie Kidd were among the celebs taking part in the auction, which kicked off a week of Children In Need fund-raising on BBC1.

It is being shown on BBC1 tonight (8.20pm), while Children In Need day itself is this Friday.

Surfing for sun

MORE than 50% of Brits now use the internet to find their holiday hotspot.

And the most important factor when picking a hotel is its swimming pool, according to the research by low-fare airline easyJet.

Location and star ratings also figured highly.

The survey also revealed that 59% of people in their 20s intended to use the internet to do their holiday research.

It also found that 9% of people who took a package holiday last summer were unhappy with the brochure or agent's description of their resort.

Jamie Wortley of easyJet said: "It's good to see people are using the internet to find the best deals."

EXCLUSIVE JENNIFER ELLISON TALKS TO THE

NO KIDS: Jennifer and her hunky fiancé Tony

HELL'S Kitchen babe Jennifer Ellison says she's too busy to have children...yet.

With four films coming out next year, she's been hard at work networking in Beverly Hills in a bid to promote her big-screen career even further.

Although she'd love to have children in the future, she has shelved all thoughts of starting a family soon.

And she insists that rumours she is pregnant with fiancé Tony Richardson's baby are not true.

The former Brookside blonde told the Daily Star Sunday: "Tony and I have no plans to have a baby right now."

"When we do decide to have a family, I want to give it 100%. But now is not the right time as I am focusing on my acting."

Jennifer, 22, added: "I have just had a really successful trip to LA and 2006 is going to be an amazing year for me."

Patter

Pals of the babe have confirmed her plans to delay the patter of tiny feet.

One friend said: "Jen has plenty of time to have kids. At the moment it is important that she concentrates on her work."

"She has four films coming out next year and a few other things in the pipeline - but no children."

Jennifer has been engaged to sunbed salesman Tony, 26, since December 2002.

Last year, she emerged a triumphant winner from the terrors of Gordon Ramsay's Hell's Kitchen reality show on ITV1.

So, as well as pledging her future to the businessman, she's proved that she can cook.

The lure of Hollywood, however, has proved stronger than the desire to settle down.

Earlier this year, Jennifer said: "I want to make it in the US. It's all very exciting."

In one of her new films, she plays the lead in a modern take on the Cleopatra story. There's also a horror flick with Dexter Fletcher.

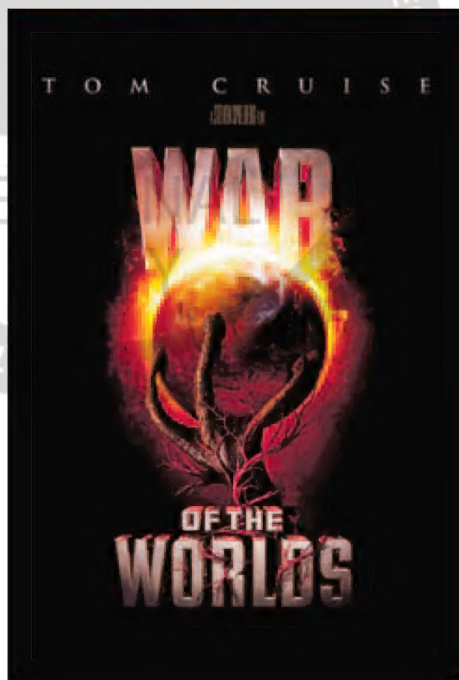

And she's due to appear in a West End play called Marlon Brando's Corset.
